

DEMOCRAT NATIONAL CONVENTION CONFIRMS GREEN NEW DEAL RADICALS IN TOTAL CONTROL

The Democrats' 4-day exhibition in radicalism last week confirmed their now-open embrace of socialism. But one of the under-emphasized areas of their desired Marxist revolution, at least in the prime-time portions of the convention, was the environmental policy boondoggle we all know as the Green New Deal. Experts estimate its cost between \$51 trillion and \$93 trillion over 10 years. For perspective, total government spending through 2029 is estimated to be less than $60 trillion. The entire US economy (gross domestic product – GDP) was $21.5 trillion in 2019.

Of course, former President Barack Obama did clarify post-convention, if there were any lingering doubt of Joe Biden's total embrace of the "Bernie Bros": "If you look at Joe Biden's goals and Bernie Sanders's goals, they're not that different, from a forty-thousand-foot level." And as Sanders himself told us at the convention, "Many of the ideas we fought for, that just a few years ago were considered radical, are now mainstream."

Some may argue that Obama is referencing other policies, so just so there's no confusion, let's go to the DNC Environment and Climate Crisis Council, which wrote last week's platform. Under its "Develop and Implement a National Climate Action Plan" section of its report, it recommends that

A national climate and environment action plan through 2050, informed by the vision and aspirations of the Green New Deal [emphasis added] and aligned with [many] aggressive, necessary emissions and energy generation goals, should be immediately developed and implemented.

We're assuming the "forty-thousand-foot level" also includes passing "the Green New Deal for Public Housing Act to retrofit public housing, and expand the Weatherization Assistance Program to retrofit at least 1 million low-income homes annually by 2024."

But these are only the instances where the phrase "Green New Deal" can be found in the Council document. However, the 2020 Democratic Party Platform, as it appears on its convention website, starkly declares "that the United States—and the world—must achieve net-zero greenhouse gas emissions as soon as possible, and no later than 2050." Matches up pretty nicely with the Council language and deadline.

The various underlying policies emanating from the Council's recommendations and the Platform's language run the gamut from agriculture, to labor, power generation and fuel production, construction, freight, health care and more. Their further commitment to a police-state climate policy approach is well-encapsulated from the Platform here:

Democrats recognize that climate change poses serious risks to the economy and the financial system. We will require public companies to disclose climate risks and greenhouse gas emissions in their operations and supply chains. We will hold polluters and corporate executives accountable for intentionally hiding or distorting material information and for affecting the health and safety of workers and communities.

In other words, doing business will cost you more and if you make a mistake in the eyes of the Green New Deal Police, Big Brother is watching!

HARRIS AS VEEP PROVES BIDEN ALL-IN ON RADICAL GREEN NEW DEAL

But nobody pays attention to party platforms, right? What has Democrat presidential nominee Biden said?

- “Number one, no more subsidies for the fossil fuel industry, no more drilling on federal lands, no more drilling, including offshore, no ability for the oil industry to continue to drill, period, ends, number one ... No more — no new fracking.” (Fracking is an extraction technique for oil and natural gas.) – 3/15/2020 Democratic presidential debate
- “I guarantee you we’re going to end fossil fuels and I am not going to cooperate with them. Before 2050, God willing.” – September 7, 2019, New Castle, New Hampshire campaign event (That 2050vdate again – no coincidence.)
- “Biden believes the Green New Deal is a crucial framework for meeting the climate challenges we face. It powerfully captures two basic truths, which are at the core of his plan: (1) the United States urgently needs to embrace greater ambition on an epic scale to meet the scope of this challenge, and (2) our environment and our economy are completely and totally connected” – The Biden Plan for a Clean Energy Revolution and Environmental Justice, Biden for President website

As to the last item, it appears that “environmental justice” was a key aspect of Biden’s selection of Kamala Harris as running mate. The New York Times reported:

Just six days before Joseph R. Biden Jr. tapped Kamala Harris to be his running mate in the presidential election, the California senator released sweeping environmental justice legislation. The timing, climate activists said, was important if not prescient.

The Climate Equity Act, an expanded version of a bill Ms. Harris and Representative Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez, Democrat of New York, introduced last year, puts the environmental health of low-income communities of color at the center of efforts to reduce planet-warming greenhouse gases.

About their legislation, Ocasio-Cortez, or “AOC,” leading member of the progressive so-called “Squad” in Congress, said in a joint press release with Harris:

The Democratic Party is now finally starting to embrace what many activists have long advocated: climate policy must be driven by and centered around frontline communities. Major environmental policies must be written by the black, brown, and low-income people who have been and will be disproportionately impacted by it, just like the Green New Deal envisioned.

Harris added: “As we combat the climate crisis and build a clean economy, we must put justice and equity first. I’m proud to partner with Congresswoman Ocasio-Cortez on this comprehensive proposal.”

So sound business and economic considerations are irrelevant, or certainly at best a distant second, to energy and environmental policy for social justice warriors like AOC and Harris.

Kamala Harris won the veepstakes due not only to the pure randomness that gave her multiracial (and radical) parentage - checking the requisite minority quota boxes for the Democrat Party. She also, and as importantly, fulfills Democrats’ policy objective of advancing the “job killing disgrace that is the Green New Deal,” as Democrat Eveleth, Minnesota Mayor Robert Vlasisavljevich put it at this week’s Republican Convention in endorsing Donald Trump for president.

Even a self-proclaimed life-long Democrat such as Vlasisavljevich has awakened to his party’s extremism. “The radical environmental movement has dragged the Democratic Party so far to the left, they can no longer claim to be advocates of the working man,” he declared.

These radical, socialist Democrats’ objective, beyond the destruction of liberty and free enterprise, is to control your life, and thereby destroy America. Unfortunately, establishment Republicans are bullied by charges of intolerance and racism from these extreme Democrats and their leftist allies.

That’s why I’ve established FedUp PAC, to fill the gap that Republican leaders have failed to breach.
